

GREETINGS FROM THE NATIONAL LGBT BAR ASSOCIATION

The National LGBT Bar Association is excited to be in Miami Beach for the 2010 Lavender Law Conference & Career Fair. Each year, the National LGBT Bar Association (and its sister organization, the National LGBT Bar Foundation, a 501(c)3 organization), hosts the annual conference as an opportunity for the leading legal minds in the LGBT community to come together and share their knowledge with each other and the next generation.

This year’s programming is our most groundbreaking yet. With over 35 workshops and general attendance sessions to choose from, attendees will have the opportunity to learn from leaders in the LGBT and legal communities on a wide range of topics including family law, transgender law, intimate partner violence, “Don’t Ask, Don’t Tell,” diversity on the bench, HIV/AIDS, immigration, hate crimes, and school safety, as well as a seminar designed to guide those interested in pursuing a career as a member of the judiciary.

Distinguished panelists will also lead discussions on a wide range of topics geared at business practitioners such as financial reform legislation, intellectual property, outsourcing and globalization, best practices for winning business from clients interested in LGBT diversity, and employment law issues from both the management and plaintiffs’ perspective. Speakers will include representatives from American Airlines, Walmart, Google, Microsoft, NBC Universal, Clorox, Accenture, Del Monte, Bristol-Myers Squibb, GlaxoSmithKline, and others.

This year’s career fair and conference was made possible by the generosity of our sponsors and their ongoing commitment to supporting the important work of the National LGBT Bar Association. Our sponsors understand that diversity is not a feel good extravagance but rather an on-going business imperative.

With so many educational, career and networking opportunities, we hope you will leave the Lavender Law Career Fair and Conference excited about the work ahead. We also hope to see you at next year’s conference in Los Angeles!

U.S. Department of Justice
Civil Rights Division

Office of the Assistant Attorney General

Washington, DC 20530

To Members of the National LGBT Bar Association:

In 2010, as we consider the state of civil rights in our nation, we have great progress to celebrate. But as you all know, challenges and barriers to true equal justice and equal opportunity remain. The Justice Department's Civil Rights Division works every day to bring down those barriers.

During the past year, the Obama Administration has been working to implement and enforce the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd, Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act, the first federal law to use the words "sexual orientation" and "gender identity" in extending federal civil rights protections to LGBT individuals. I testified in Congress in support of a federal law to protect LGBT individuals in the workplace, and the Civil Rights Division has been using existing federal civil rights laws to protect LGBT rights at the same time that executive branch agencies throughout the federal government have taken important steps to secure a wide array of additional protections for LGBT individuals.

As attorneys and law students who share a commitment to equality and justice, you know that with the help of strong advocates, our legal institutions can secure justice for every person. You all carry the torch of a tradition of great lawyers who have worked hard in service to our common values of democracy and fairness.

This weekend represents an opportunity for you to come together to celebrate your community and your commitment to the legal profession and to develop the relationships and skills that will help you advance your careers and the common good. I applaud all of you for your work and dedication.

I send you my best wishes for a successful weekend in Miami Beach as you gather for the Lavender Law Career Fair & Conference of the National LGBT Bar Association.

Warmest regards,

Tom Perez
Assistant Attorney General

LAW & SEXUALITY

LAW & SEXUALITY:

A Review of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Legal Issues

Law & Sexuality is the official legal journal of the National LGBT Bar Association. First published in 1991, Law & Sexuality is the first and only student-edited law review in the country devoted solely to covering legal issues of interest to the lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender community on a wide variety of subjects, including constitutional, employment, family, health, insurance, and military law. The Journal addresses all of these issues and more with theoretical and practical articles by academicians, practitioners, and students. This journal is published every year and has broad national and international circulation.

As the official legal publication of the National LGBT Bar Association, the Journal publishes the winning article of the annual LGBT Bar Michael Greenberg Student Writing Competition. This exciting competition is dedicated to encouraging and recognizing outstanding law student scholarship on the legal issues affecting LGBT persons.

Subscriptions are $12.00 per year for students, $18.00 for domestic individual orders, $20.00 for domestic institutions, and $25.00 for international subscribers. The Journal also welcomes the submission of unsolicited articles, essays, and book reviews at:

DAN BRADLEY AWARD

This year, the National LGBT Bar Association is proud to present Jon W. Davidson with the 2010 Dan Bradley Award, the organization's highest honor. Jon Davidson is the Legal Director for Lambda Legal, the oldest and largest national legal organization committed to achieving full recognition of the civil rights of LGBT individuals and individuals with HIV. Mr. Davidson has been working full-time as an LGBT rights lawyer for more than 22 years. His hard work and vision have delivered some of the most important victories in the legal struggle for LGBT equality.

Please join the National LGBT Bar Association in thanking Jon Davidson for all his hard work on behalf of the LGBT community.

The Dan Bradley Award is the National LGBT Bar Association's highest honor. It recognizes the efforts of a member of the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender legal community whose work has led the way in our struggle for legal equality. Dan Bradley was the first chair of the American Bar Association Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities' Committee on the Rights of Gay People. Bradley saw the law as a powerful instrument of social justice, and he believed that lawyers had an obligation to place their skills as advocates at the service of the least powerful among us.

STUDENT LEADERSHIP 2010 AWARD WINNER

The National LGBT Bar Association would like to congratulate Burchfield and Hawkes for their hard work and numerous contributions to the LGBT community. The 2010 Student Leadership Award will be presented at Saturday's Law Student Celebration, sponsored by Sullivan & Cromwell

This year, the National LGBT Bar Association is proud to present C. Hays Burchfield, recent graduate from the University of Mississippi ("Ole Miss"), with the 2010 Student Leadership Award, the organization's highest honor for law students. Mr. Burchfield is a fearless legal advocate for LGBT rights and has been working tirelessly to bring equality to the LGBT community in the South. In the face of adversity, Burchfield worked aggressively to create an OUTlaw group at Ole Miss. He also assisted the ACLU of Mississippi with legal research surrounding Constance McMillen's right to attend prom with her girlfriend, Ceara Sturgis' desire to wear a tuxedo in her yearbook senior picture, and the right of Juin Baizea (a transgender student) to attend public high school wearing "traditionally female attire." Through his work, Burchfield inspires other students in the community and nationwide. Of receiving the LGBT Bar's Student Leadership Award, Burchfield says "It is humbling and I would like to share the praise with all those who helped me. This is a good thing for the community, the law school and Mississippi."

2010 Student Leadership Award Runner-up

The National LGBT Bar Association would also like to recognize Danielle Hawkes, a recent graduate from the University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law, as the runner-up for the 2010 Student Leadership Award. Ms. Hawkes' accomplishments include co-founding a LGBT legal clinic in Salt Lake City, a long term benefit to the community. Hawkes is also notable for her fearless ability to lead challenging conversations in conservative Utah while bringing together people with different beliefs. After the bar exam, Hawkes hopes to work in LGBT law or on other social justice issues near to her heart. Hawkes is a dedicated and passionate organizer and will continue to fight for equality in whatever cause she champions.

BEST LGBT LAWYERS UNDER 40

The Department of Defense has formed a Pentagon Working Group to study the implications of repeal for the military, with the results due by the end of 2010. Although the federal law of "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" remains in full effect, in March 2010 the military introduced new regulations intended to enforce the policy "in a fairer and more appropriate manner." What does it all mean? Do the new regulations significantly change the impact of "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" on the lives of service members? How is the Pentagon Working Group studying the issue, and will their efforts clarify the upcoming congressional debate? If Congress does not repeal the law or impose a moratorium, can the President suspend it by executive action? What is the judicial landscape for constitutional challenges to Legal advocates with a keen eye on the executive branch see meaningful regulatory change within the Administration, notwithstanding concerns over the pace of change presented by certain LGBT activists and bloggers. How will the progress that has been made affect the legal profession and the LGBT community? HUD is undertaking the federal government's first study on anti-gay discrimination in housing; HHS has directed federal grantees to allow hospital visitation rights for same sex couples and granted $900k to create the first and only national resource center on LGBT aging; the Justice Department has declared that Violence Against Women Act applies to same-sex couples; the Office of Personnel Management has made available certain benefits to the same sex partners of federal employees; and the Labor Department has interpreted the Family and Medical Leave Act to allow a caregiver to take leave to care for a child irrespective of their biological or legal relationship. The HIV travel ban has been lifted and federal law now prohibits hate crimes on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity, but what do these legislative accomplishments mean for our community? What are the prospects for other LGBT legislative priorities? What else does the LGBT community want from the Administration?

Historically, pro bono in big law firms was an ad hoc practice reserved for a select few big-hitters. Now even the most prestigious firms centralize and streamline their complimentary legal services. The LGBT community represents a huge unmet need for legal services. This workshop will focus on a pro bono model that has worked effectively for the LGBT community in the case of Cole v. Arkansas. Presenters will include both representatives of nonprofits that have received the bounty of millions of dollars worth of top-quality legal services and the firms – AND solo practitioners – that love them! Come and find out how your nonprofit organization, firm or solo practice can develop these important working relationships.

Few substantive areas are hotter or more important to your most important commercial clients than IP. Patent/trademark prosecution and litigation, copyright enforcement, branding and licensing: whether you are a leader in a firm, business, start-up or nonprofit, you need to know about these and other critical issues, particularly if you are not an IP specialist. This workshop will present a wide variety of IP law topics including basic patent, trademark, and copyright law, and a discussion of hot topics such as internet liability, genetics and software patenting, expanding domain names and trademarks, legislative and judicial reforms and regulatory changes.

Hate Crimes and the Matthew Shepard and James Byrd Jr Hate Crimes Prevention Act of 2009 – From Theory to Statute and Now on to Application
Sponsored by Alston & Bird LLP

Americana Salon 3

The FBI reports that the number of hate crimes have risen every year over the last decade, with a hate crime occurring almost every hour of the day, seven days a week. Hate crimes against LGBT people have also risen dramatically. To aid in combating this problem, Congress has passed several hate crimes statutes, including the most recent Shepard-Byrd Act which extends hate crimes coverage to persons who are, or perceived to be, LGBT, among other categories. Federal prosecutors and investigators now have a duty to form stronger liaisons with the LGBT community so that law enforcement can better identify and prosecute these crimes. Likewise, LGBT attorneys have a responsibility to understand the application of the first federal law that extends legal protection to our transgender brothers and sisters in order to help provide accurate reporting to the FBI. This panel will: explore ways that Federal law enforcement and the LGBT community and advocates can work better together to combat hate crimes; address U-visas and other immigration options available to undocumented hate crimes victims; discuss emerging legal trends in the enforcement of this new Act; propose ways for advocates and student practitioners to identify and report possible violations of this Act.

Social Networks/Social Justice: Organizing for Social Change While Comporting with Intellectual Property Law and Ethics

Sponsored by Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow & Dunner LLP

Poinciana 2

The changing landscape of communication poses a complicated set of legal demands for anyone attempting to use social media channels properly, including copyright and trademark law requirements, e-discovery obligations, and ethical concerns. And how do those demands conflict with LGBT attorneys when we work as advocates within the LGBT movement? New technologies and social networking sites present important opportunities, but beware the rocky shoals that such media present. Are you aware of the protections that proper response protocols provide? Attend this workshop to learn what to do and what NOT do online including presenting yourself, your work, and your organization's reputation in new social media.

Same-sex couples are learning what it means to be married and what it means to get divorced. Marital rules apply to couples in more than ten states, affecting the allocation of assets, debt liability, and financial support obligations upon divorce or dissolution. This workshop will explore the legal and emotional impact of the multitude of issues lawyers are likely to face. The treatment of pre-marital assets, extent of post-separation support, and tax-related complications will be discussed, as well as the inter-personal dynamics of claims for marital "rights". The workshop will include group discussions of various hypothetical scenarios raising these issues.

Intimate Partner Violence

Cowrie 1

Intimate partner violence is as prevalent in the lives of LGBT relationships as it is in heterosexual relationships, yet the movement has avoided facing that fact head on, choosing instead to work on issues that position our families in a favorable light. There are very few resources, legal and non-legal, for LGBT survivors. In this workshop we will review the unique barriers LGBT victims face accessing legal options, identify legal issues and remedies, and discuss how lawyers and law students can work on this important issue facing our communities.

Preventing Peer and Teacher Harassment of LGBT Students: Innovative Strategies for Lawyers in the Safe School Movement
Sponsored by Baker Botts LLP

Poinciana 3

This interactive workshop will describe innovative ways for lawyers, law professors and law students to engage in anti-bullying efforts and in gender identity and gender expression issues. Bullying experts generally agree that litigation does little to prevent bullying or provide remedies for harassed children. Judicial opinions in bullying cases have made it exceedingly difficult for victims to prevail in court. Therefore, lawyers should consider using their skills to offer help in prevention.

The workshop will present the Ohio Safe School Project as a model collaborative initiative that focuses on prevention with a legal perspective, which is often lacking in anti-bullying programs. This workshop will also offer a reproduction of a transgender students in K-12 paper recently presented at the 25th Annual School Law Conference in Austin, Texas.

Immigration, LGBT Asylum and Refugee Law Sponsored by Latham & Watkins

Cowrie 1

The panel will lead a discussion of recent changes in immigration law such as the repeal of the HIV travel and immigration ban and administrative and regulatory efforts in that area as well as in the area of immigration rights. It will also discuss legislative efforts (the Uniting American Families Act and a partial or complete repeal of DOMA) that would recognize lesbian and gay bi-national couples under U.S. immigration law. Finally, it would explore the complex legal environment that these couples would face if DOMA is repealed in light of U.S. immigration officials' prior treatment of marriages that are recognized in some, but not all, U.S. states.

New Legal Strategies for Changing Treatment of Children with Intersex Conditions
Sponsored by Townsend and Townsend and Crew LLP

Poinciana 4

After more than 15 years of intersex activism, the medical field remains slow to respond to critiques raised by the intersex community. While there has been some change in medical practice, early cosmetic genital surgery, sterilization of minors, and medical display of intersex children remain the norm. This workshop outlines two new promising advocacy strategies for protecting the rights of these vulnerable children: approaching doctors on behalf of intersex adults who were harmed by their medical treatment and requesting apology for that harm; and implementing existing law regarding involuntary sterilization to obtain judicial review in advance of such operations.

Laura E. Duffy was sworn in as the Presidentially-appointed United States Attorney for the Southern District of California on June 2, 2010. The Southern District of California encompasses San Diego and Imperial Counties, and has approximately 3.1 million residents. The U.S. Attorney's Office enforces all violations of federal law occurring in the Southern District of California. The U.S. Attorney's Office also defends the United States in all civil lawsuits and collects debts owed to the United States. Ms. Duffy joined the United States Department of Justice in 1993. From 1993 to 1997, she was assigned at Justice Department Headquarters in Washington, D.C., first to the Criminal Division Money Laundering Section and later to the Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Section. In 1997, Ms. Duffy became an Assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of California. Prior to being sworn in as U.S. Attorney, she was a Deputy Chief in the General Crimes Section of the office. From 1997-2008, Ms. Duffy worked in the Narcotics Enforcement Section as an Assistant United States Attorney where she prosecuted Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDETF) and High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA) cases targeting large-scale drug trafficking organizations operating internationally and/or in multi-jurisdictions throughout the United States. Her most notable cases involved successful prosecutions against members of the Arellano Felix Organization (AFO), a notorious drug trafficking cartel controlling the Tijuana, Baja California Norte corridor believed to be responsible for importing thousands of tons of cocaine and marijuana into the United States and murdering hundreds of people. Ms. Duffy is the recipient of many prominent Department Of Justice awards, including the Attorney General's Award for Distinguished Service, which she received in 2008 for her work on the Arellano-Felix drug cartel cases. Ms. Duffy received her undergraduate degree in 1988 from Iowa State University and her law degree in 1993 from the Creighton University School of Law. Ms. Duffy is married and has one son.

Professor William N. Eskridge, Jr. is the John A. Garver Professor of Jurisprudence at Yale Law School. His primary legal academic interest has been statutory interpretation. Together with Professor Philip Frickey, he developed an innovative casebook on Legislation. In 1990-95, Professor Eskridge represented a gay couple suing for recognition of their same-sex marriage. Since then, he has published a field-establishing casebook, three monographs, and dozens of law review articles articulating a legal and political framework for proper state treatment of sexual and gender minorities. The historical materials in the book on Gaylaw formed the basis for an amicus brief he drafted for the Cato Institute and for much of the Court's (and the dissenting opinion's) analysis in Lawrence v. Texas (2003), which invalidated consensual sodomy laws. His most recent book is Gay Marriage: For Better or For Worse? (with Darren Spedale). Professor Eskridge received his B.A., summa cum laude, from Davidson College, his masters in History from Harvard, and his J.D. from Yale.

Phyllis Frye grew up in Texas as the all-American boy – an Eagle Scout and commander of her high school ROTC class. But when she came out as transgender in 1972, Frye lost her military career and her first marriage ended. She transitioned from male to female in 1976. As a result, she was dismissed from her job as an engineer. The next year, to fight depression and ensure a future income, she went back to school to study business administration and law at the University of Houston's Law Center and College of Business. As a student, Frye successfully lobbied every elected official in Houston to get rid of the city ordinance against crossdressing that made her subject to arrest on a daily basis. In 1979 and again in 1981, 1983 and 1985, Frye, then out as transgender, was elected as a delegate to the Texas Democratic Convention. She was instrumental in encouraging the Texas Democratic Party to adopt a GLBT-rights supportive plank in its official platform in 1983. Frye is the founder and former executive director of the International Conference on Transgender Law and Employment Policy Inc. She also founded the Transgender Law Conference. In 1995, Frye began the "Phyllabuster" e-mail network that keeps thousands of activists around the world informed about related legal and political issues related to transgender people, as well as lesbian, gay and bisexual issues. In 2009, Texas A&M University named its annual Advocacy Award after Phyllis. Frye remains a practicing attorney in Houston, where she lives with Trish, her legal spouse of over 30 years.

Elaine Kaplan was appointed General Counsel at the United States Office of Personnel Management on March 17, 2009. Kaplan began her legal career in the Solicitor's Office of the U.S. Department of Labor, first in the Employee Benefits Division, and later in the Division of Special Appellate and Supreme Court litigation. Most recently, she served as Senior Deputy General Counsel for the National Treasury Employees Union, which represents the interests of more than 150,000 federal employees nationwide. In this position and during her initial tenure with NTEU from 1984 to 1998, she litigated and supervised the litigation of cases at all levels of the federal court system. In 1998, Kaplan was appointed by President Bill Clinton and unanimously confirmed by the Senate to serve as the head of the U.S. Office of Special Counsel, an independent agency whose mission is to protect the merit-based civil service by, among other things, investigating and prosecuting complaints alleging the commission of prohibited personnel practices, including whistleblower reprisal. After completing a successful five-year term at OSC in 2003, she became "of counsel" to Bernabei and Katz, a nationally recognized plaintiff's side employment law and civil rights firm. Kaplan re-joined NTEU in 2004. Kaplan has appeared frequently at national and international conferences to speak on issues related to the merit-based civil service and on whistleblower protection; she has authored several articles on these and related subjects. Since 2004, she has been a member of the adjunct faculty of American University's School of Public Administration, teaching graduate-level classes covering legal issues that arise in the context of public administration, with an emphasis on constitutional law. She also served on President Barack Obama's transition team as an agency review team leader in the Government Operations Group. A native of Brooklyn, New York, Kaplan earned a J.D., cum laude, from Georgetown University in 1979. She received a bachelor's degree in history from the State University of New York in Binghamton in 1976.

Joyce Kauffman specializes in family law, co-parent adoption, and mediation, with an emphasis on legal issues affecting lesbian and gay families. Joyce has written extensively on these issues and is a frequent speaker at seminars, conferences, and in community settings; she is the former co-chair of the Massachusetts Lesbian and Gay Bar Association and former chair of MLGBA's Family Law Section. Her legal accomplishments include obtaining a court order placing two lesbian mothers on a birth certificate without benefit of adoption where one of the women was the egg donor and her partner gave birth; more recently, she has successfully petitioned the court to allow several three-parent adoptions for lesbian and gay families. Joyce is the recipient of the Gwen Bloomingdale Pioneer Spirit Award, from the Massachusetts Lesbian and Gay Bar Association, 2007; the Fisher Davenport Award, from the Family Pride Coalition (now Family Equality Council) and COLAGE, 2004; and the Barney Frank Award, from Massachusetts School of Law, 2003. She is a member of the National Family Law Advisory Council for the National Center for Lesbian Rights. Joyce was selected by Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly as one of Massachusetts' Ten Lawyers of the Year in 2009.

Judge Steven Kirkland serves as Judge in the 215th Civil District Court in Harris County Texas. He was elected to this current bench in November of 2008. He came to Houston from west Texas in order to attend Rice University. After graduating from Rice in 1982, he worked as a paralegal at Texaco in order to put himself through the University of Houston Law School. In 1990 Judge Kirkland began his career as an attorney litigating environmental, bankruptcy and other complex cases for that company, which he continued for eight years until he left to represent citizens committed to cleaning up air quality in Houston. From 2001 through 2008, Judge Kirkland served as a Judge in Houston Municipal Courts. During his tenure, he created the Houston Homeless Recovery Court, which works in conjunction with the Houston Coalition for the Homeless. In recognition of this achievement, Judge Kirkland was awarded the 2006 Government Friend of the Homeless by Coalition for the Homeless of Houston and Harris County. Off the bench, Judge Kirkland is active in affordable housing, historic preservation, and Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender rights issues. His real estate projects have been recognized with awards by the Greater Houston Preservation Alliance and others.

Beth Littrell is a Staff Attorney in the Southern Regional Office of Lambda Legal, the oldest and largest national legal organization committed to achieving full recognition of the civil rights of lesbians, gay men, bisexuals, transgender people and people with HIV. Before joining Lambda Legal in 2007, Littrell was involved in numerous constitutional cases involving LGBTQ and students' rights first as an attorney and later the Associate Legal Director for the ACLU of Georgia. She helped to strike down a Georgia law which made it a crime for unmarried persons to engage in intimate relations (In re J.M.), won an appeal that forced the state to return a lesbian mother's children (In re S.C. and E.C.), won relief for students subject to a racially applied, overly vague "antigang" dress code (Tillman v. Gwinnett Co. Sch. Dist.) and successfully fought to secure the right for students to form a Gay Straight Alliance in White County, Georgia (P.R.I.D.E. v. White Co. School Dist.). Most recently, she was the lead attorney in Langbehn v. Jackson Memorial Hospital, which, though unsuccessful in creating a duty for doctors to allow patients' same-sex partners and healthcare surrogates access to visit them while hospitalized, led to President Obama's directive to the Department of Health and Human Services to draft rules that would require such access same nationally.

Daniel Mateo is a partner in Reed Smith's Commercial Litigation Group, with responsibility for handling a wide range of complex commercial litigation matters in state and federal courts around the country. He also has substantial experience arbitrating commercial disputes, which includes the enforcement of arbitral agreements and awards. In addition, Dan has considerable experience managing the complete electronic discovery process, in the context of both litigation and arbitration. During his years of practice, Dan has developed particular experience representing clients in the life-sciences industry that have been faced with commercial and contractual litigation, product liability matters, and toxic-exposure cases. As a result, Dan has a wealth of knowledge regarding both the business and litigation issues that today's dynamic life sciences and pharmaceutical companies are apt to encounter. His experience is cross-disciplinary and extends to the transactional, regulatory and intellectual property issues that are essential to understanding the specialized needs of life sciences companies confronted with complex litigation. Dan is familiar with many of the issues associated with the life cycle of prescription and over-the-counter products manufactured by both branded and generic pharmaceutical companies, including pre-clinical and clinical development, NDA and ANDA regulatory approval, successful launch and commercialization, and product licensing, supply, collaboration and promotion. In addition to his specialized life sciences experience, Dan has defended a number of personal injury and wrongful death actions arising out of allegations of workplace chemical exposure or allegedly defective consumer products, swimming pools and heavy equipment/machinery.

Jenny Pizer is Senior Counsel and Marriage Project Director for Lambda Legal, the nation's premiere legal advocate for the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender civil rights movement. Based in Los Angeles, Pizer litigates cases and engages in public policy advocacy to advance family equality for same-sex couples and their children, and to end sexual orientation discrimination in health care, employment, education and housing. Pizer served as co-counsel in the litigation that won marriage equality for same-sex couples in California in 2008, and later confirmed that the 18,000 such couples who married there before Proposition 8's passage remain validly married, and she has litigated many similar cases seeking marriage and other protections for lesbian and gay couples and their families in the West. Pizer co-drafted AB 205, California's broad "Domestic Partner Rights and Responsibilities Act of 2003," as well as later bills to clarify and expand the rights of registered domestic partners in California, and has assisted lawmakers in many states and federally with similar issues. She also represented Guadalupe Benitez against physicians who refused her a common infertility treatment because she is a lesbian, based on their antigay religious beliefs. The case resulted in a precedent-setting, unanimous California Supreme Court ruling in 2008 that religious beliefs do not excuse sexual orientation discrimination against patients, as well as the first published decision nationally affirming the right of patients to enforce state nondiscrimination laws against physicians without preemption by federal law. Pizer is a frequent advocate for LGBT family equality in academic and public settings and to the media. A graduate of NYU School of Law and Harvard/Radcliffe College, Pizer has served as an adjunct professor at USC Law School, Loyola Law School and Whittier Law School.

Mr. Winterfeldt's practice involves most aspects of intellectual property law, including domestic and international trademark counseling, clearance, prosecution, enforcement, and litigation, as well as trade dress and domain name issues. Mr. Winterfeldt assists clients with the creation of trademark and branding strategies and the development of programs to enforce and protect intellectual property rights. He represents clients seeking to protect against infringement of their copyrights, trademarks, and trade dress in the United States and internationally. Mr. Winterfeldt represents clients who are global leaders in their industries, including the retail and apparel, media, financial, consumer products, and Internet industries. Mr. Winterfeldt's practice includes significant work in domain name law and new media counseling and enforcement, including assisting clients with the management of their domain name portfolios and securing domain names that incorporate clients' trademarks through the Uniform Dispute Resolution Policy and other similar processes for foreign domain names. Mr. Winterfeldt has also counseled clients on cutting edge issues such as social media and Web 2.0, including strategies for brand promotion and protection in these spaces. Mr. Winterfeldt has also written numerous articles on trademark law and has been selected for the past several years to serve as a reviewer for the Saul Lefkowitz Moot Court Competition by the International Trademark Association. Mr. Winterfeldt also serves as Co-Chair of Steptoe's GLBT Forum and as a member of Steptoe's Diversity Committee. Mr. Winterfeldt is a prominent and frequent speaker at industry events on topics including trademark issues and social media.

Tobias Barrington Wolff is a Professor of Law at the University of Pennsylvania Law School. Professor Wolff writes and teaches in civil procedure and constitutional law. In the field of procedure, Wolff specializes in complex litigation and the conflict of laws. In the field of constitutional law, he has published articles and essays on topics ranging from free speech under the First Amendment and slavery under the Thirteenth Amendment to the rights of gay men and lesbians. He is co-author (with Linda Silberman and Allan Stein) of Civil Procedure: Theory and Practice (Aspen, 3d ed 2009) and his recently published articles include Federal Jurisdiction and Due Process in the Era of the Nationwide Class Action (University of Pennsylvania Law Review) and Expressive Association and the Ideal of the University in the Solomon Amendment Litigation (with Andrew Koppelman) (Social Philosophy & Policy). Wolff has served as counsel or counsel for amici curiae in many civil rights cases, including Strauss v. Horton (Cal. Sup. Ct.), challenging a ballot initiative seeking to deprive same-sex couples of the right to marry, and Cook v. Gates, 528 F.3d 42 (1st Cir. 2008), challenging the constitutionality of the U.S. military's Don't Ask, Don't Tell policy. He won the A. Leo Levin Award for Excellence in an Introductory Course in 2009.

M. Andrew Woodmansee is Head of the Litigation Practice Group in Morrison & Foerster's San Diego office. He represents plaintiffs and defendants in patent infringement matters in federal courts throughout the United States, including clients such as General Electric, DISH Network, Sandoz, Inc., Charter Communications, and Palm, Inc. He has tried numerous cases to verdict in federal court in both bench and jury trials, and he has represented clients in a number of appellate courts, including the United States Supreme Court, the United States Courts of Appeals for the Seventh, Ninth, and Federal Circuits, as well as the California Supreme Court. In addition to his intellectual property practice, Mr. Woodmansee also litigates cases involving First Amendment challenges, particularly with respect to the Establishment and Free Exercise Clauses. For example, he has served as trial and appellate counsel in Barnes-Wallace, et al. v. Boy Scouts of America, et al., 530 F.3d 776 (9th Cir. 2008). In that case, he won two summary judgment rulings in 2003 and 2004 on behalf of his clients, an agnostic couple and a lesbian couple, as well as their Scouting-age boys. The Court ruled that the City of San Diego's free leases of 18 acres in Balboa Park and one acre in Mission Bay Park to the Boy Scouts violate the Establishment Clause of the United States Constitution, as well as the No Aid and No Preference Clauses of the California Constitution. He also has represented clients in connection with challenges to "Don't Ask, Don't Tell." Currently, he serves as lead counsel for Lt. Col. Victor Fehrenbach in connection with the Air Force's efforts to discharge his client under DADT.
